Special Cablegram to the Post-Dispatch.

ONION, Feb. 1.—Although it is sure now that Parliament will not be dissolved until it has completed its constitutional limitation, reports to the contrary proving to be sheer invention, and two or three years must elapse before a general election is held, preparations are being made on all sides with great vigor for the contest when it does come. Political parties are organizing their machines and laying out work among local leaders. Every bye-election will be made a test. No acts of electioneering will be omitted, and provisions of acts against bribery and treating will be severely strained.

MR. GLADSTONE is entering the field with the buoyancy of earlier years, and with prayerful hope that he will live to see it end in the victory of his friends. It has already been arranged, it is said, that he will contest at the general election whatever division Marquis Hartington may run for. This will bring the struggle between the Liberals and Liberal Unionists to a definite head, although it cannot be expected that the long quarrel can be decided by a single combat like this. The intent, however, illustrates the undaunted and energetic spirit with which the Liberal leader enters upon his fray.

His activity in all departments of knowledge at the present time testifies to the undiminished vigor of his mind, a good augury for the future. He is now at Oxford, where he spends hours daily in the rooms of his old college preparing a series of articles on church history.

THE CONSERVATIVE PARTY is passing through a phase of depression owing to the illness of its leader. Deprived of his counsel, assistance and direction just before the reopening of session the party feels helpless and disorganized in the face of threatened attack. Lord Salisbury is unable to present, so no cabinet meetings are held, and he may be obliged to prolong his absence and to go to the South of France to recuperate.

The Marquis of Hartington has had a slight relapse since his return to London, and has been compelled to delay his departure for Egypt, where he proposes to go and recover his health. Thus the great leaders of two parties which hold power solely by virtue of their coalition, are incapacitated.

A CABINET COUNCIL is to be held, however, next week, over which William Henry Smith, leader of the House of Commons will preside in the absence of Salisbury. The program for the parliamentary session, then to be arranged as best it can, looks as if it would not be a strong one, and will depend solely upon the number of supporters in the House to carry it through. The Government anticipates an attack and will be placed on the defensive from the first day of the session. The Ministers are coming to town, to take part in the Council.

Party chiefs have issued summons to lieutenants who are trooping into the city for consultation. Whips have been sent around to all members of the House pressing them to be present at the opening. All betokens a stirring campaign.

It is noted as a sign of the times that the Duke of Devonshire, who recently married Princess Louise of Wales, has entered the field of politics.

AN UNUSUAL VENTURE for one allied with the royal family, members of which are supposed to abstain from politics. The Duke, however, is not to be restrained by royal conventions. He is too ambitious for that. He regularly attends political meetings and is sedulously coaching himself for a public career. The only explanation the public can give of this erratic proceeding is that he aims at Vice-Royalty and is in haste.

Charles Stewart Parnell, who may follow the president of the Marquis of Lorne and succeed Lord Stanley as Governor-General of Canada.

MR. PARNELL, although invisible, is not inactive. His address to the Irish party sounds like a clarion call. He has weighty work on hand. It is believed that at this session the question of home rule for Ireland is to be settled. Parnell, as it is said, will have every man ber of the party think so. His influence is felt in every direction. He will have no stone unturned to further the cause. He intends to produce a whole mass of Pignotti's letters, forgeries and all.

MR. DAVITT, speaking of the forthcoming documents and testimony, says the revelations they will make will be startling even to a world fed with the proceedings of special commissions. Mr. Parnell no longer seeks his own vindication from the accusation of the Times. In the interest of the cause he supports he proposes to disclose and denounce to the world the nefarious conspiracy which was formed against the leader in order to kill it and complete the investigation which the special commission refused to allow him to do and which is left undone.

THE TROUBLE WITH PORTUGAL. Popular excitement in Portugal has worn itself out. There have been no violent demonstrations against the English of late; but boycotting continues and efforts to abolish British trade continue. Frequent has been formed which will take time to effect. The friendship for England, which has animated Portugal since the days of Wellington, has been turned to hatred, and Portuguese hatred is singularly venomous, and like venom, lasts long.

Mr. Serpento is more than ever a popular hero and is coming home. He refuses the commission rather than be buried from sight. He is anxious to return to Lisbon, where it is suspected he will play the role of Gen. Boulanger.

In the meantime the Government has taken an important step. It sent a lengthy note to the European powers to-night, appealing to them for arbitration.

Portugal's differences as to territory with England and claiming the right to each appeal under the treaty concluded at the Berlin Conference. It was the hint it might call in the Continental powers to adjudicate in matters which he regarded as none of their business, which caused Lord Salisbury to launch the thunderbolt of an ultimatum. The actual appeal now made will not tend to improve England's temper.

The situation has been dangerously complicated by the obstinate and insubordinate behavior of the Governor of Mozambique. He continues to defy all orders from Lisbon, and refuses to deliver up the territory claimed by England. If this statement is confirmed, there is no doubt that the British squadron will seize Delagoa Bay.

"THE PROBLEMS OF THE GREATER BRITAIN." Sir Charles Dilke's new book, "The Problems of the Greater Britain," is well received and promises an immense sale. The writer deals chiefly with the question of the resources and defenses of Great Britain. He insists that imperial defensive measures after the plan of those adopted by Germany are absolutely essential, and also earnestly recommends that England follow the German system of federation as speedily as possible. Imperial federation, he asserts, is bound to come sooner or later, and the sooner the better. It must not, however, be forced upon Canada and Austria, which are the best and most reliable political guides that England has, and whose situation of the great problem of the exact relations of capital to labor and vice versa must ultimately be accepted by the home country. Altogether the book, which is issued in two volumes, is a stronger presentation of the problems to be confronted, and cogent suggestions for dealing with them than has yet been put forth by any recognized authority upon the matter treated of, and it is safe to predict that it will be heeded.

LORD SALISBURY has yielded to the political pressure brought upon him and abandoned his proposed trip to the Continent for the present, at least. His health is very poor and it is believed that the Cabinet council, which is to be held within a few days, he will pave the way for his early resignation from the Foreign Office, the recent exigencies of which have laid heavily upon his physical and vital resources.

Speculation is rife as to the Cabinet changes which will result from his withdrawal from the Foreign Department, but nothing worthy of serious acceptance is believed from the self-constituted slate-makers whose ratiocinations are as varied as they are absurd.

SARDINIA has more than ever infested with brigands, who have become so rampant that the government at Rome is deliberating whether to send more troops and declare a state of siege.

Owing to the destruction of crops by bad weather, famine prevails in Bessarabia. Many people have died.

THE PERSIAN PLAGUE. Destitution and misery are widespread and intense, and appeals for assistance have been made to the neighboring Russian provinces and Roumania, Serbia and Bulgaria.

Words of Wisdom and Warning—Minor English Events.

ONION, Feb. 1.—The English journals hardly notice the reports of cholera in Persia, or if they do, they speak of the probability that they are greatly exaggerated and that the dread disease is not likely to spread beyond the limits to which it is at present confined. The press, however, has been full of the reports of cholera in Persia, and the exponents of science ridiculed the influence, pronounced it largely the result of an excited imagination among the ignorant peasantry of Russia and confidently announced that if it should make its appearance in Western Europe it would prove but a trifling complaint when treated by the skilled physicians of enlightened communities.

An English medical light, whose articles in the Lancet and other pathological journals is always provoke considerable controversy, is of the opinion that Europe has a great deal to learn from the cholera which has been in Persia. "The virulent type it has assumed," he says, "is highly unusual in the winter months and marks an almost unprecedented malignity in the fearful pestilence. The powerlessness of medical men when called upon to contend with the novel circumstances has been shown by this winter's experience. Any dread that the influenza would prove a serious affliction was met with a smile of conscious superiority and the student of history who referred to past experiences was snubbed as a alarmist. Yet its dead may be counted by thousands, and palaces as well as hovels have felt its awful power."

If the cholera should really prove epidemic it will follow its usual routes through Asia Minor to Turkey in Europe, and to India via the Persian Gulf. So long as the Moslem fanatical holds the European side of the Bosphorus plague of this kind will gain a foothold in Europe. Any attempt to subject the Turks to sanitary laws will be looked upon by them as an outrage and a conspiracy on the part of the Western nations to en-slave upon their liberties and subvert their religion. The prospect for the coming summer is a decidedly gloomy one."

THE VARIOUS BODIES OF GOOD TEMPLARS throughout England have decided by an almost unanimous vote to abandon their policy of separation and reunite on a basis similar of that of their former union.

A PROPOSAL'S RESIGNATION. Prof. James Stuart, member of Parliament for Exeter, has resigned the professorship of mechanics and applied mechanics in Cambridge University, which chair he has held for many years.

THE NEWSPAPER SENSATION of the hour is a London letter to the Paris Figure signed by Staff-Writer Johnson, saying that Broadley, who ran away from London a short time ago to escape arrest, was taken to Boulanger and Rochefort to Hammond's house, in Cleveland street.

CAPT. O'SHEA'S CHARGES. The impending charge of Capt. O'Shea will not prevent Mr. Parnell from taking part in the debates on the Queen's speech and he will still be recognized as the leader of his party. At no time has the acceptance of Mr. Parnell as leader been more absolute than since the Pignotti incident made him look in the eyes of the English Liberal electors like the victim of a long-continued and gross injustice.

LORD HARTINGTON'S HEALTH. The chief cause for anxiety in Lord Hartington's case has arisen from the fact that, in spite of his fine frame and vigorous aspect, he inherits a tendency to pulmonary troubles.

The obstinacy of the British peer is proverbial, and though his consistency has been referred to as the bulwark of the throne, the Queen has often found it an obstacle to her desires. They have several times roused her to a frantic rage by their refusal to pass her bills allowing marriage with a deceased wife's sister, and even now that Prof. Schroeder, the eminent biologist, has declared that the accepted translation is wrong, and that such marriages are not forbidden by the famous text in Leviticus, they expressed still a determination to stick to the Queen's dogmatism, to stick to the belief of their youth right or wrong.

THE PORTUGUESE TROUBLES. The Action Parliament Will Take in the Matter—German Sympathy.

Special Cablegram to the Post-Dispatch. ONION, Feb. 1.—Parliament opens on the 11th inst. Mr. James Forgan, an Under-Secretary of State, will deliver the opening speech. He will be asked whether any Cabinet Council or consultation of Ministers took place before the sending to Portugal of Lord Salisbury's dispatch, threatening to break off diplomatic relations with the Portuguese Government. It is said that as a matter of fact the dispatch was not seen by any Minister other than Lord Salisbury. Lord Salisbury is confident of support, because he believes his dispatches show that the Portuguese claim was not founded upon any recognizable acts of protection or of occupation, while on the side of Great Britain there was an unmistakable intention which gave to the action of the Portuguese an offensive and invasive character.

MR. JOHN MORLEY, in speaking of the matter to-day, said: "The English demand is said to have been not merely for a withdrawal of all Portuguese soldiers or civilians pretending to exercise authority in Mozambique, but for a recognition of the British Protectorate over Nyassaland and the Shire Basin north of the River. This demand covers the whole matter in dispute. It involves not merely the disavowal on the part of Portugal of the attempts associated with the names of Maj. Serpento, Capt. Gordon, Capt. Cardo and Col. Pina D'Almeida, but a complete status quo by force pending negotiations, but also an absolute abandonment by Portugal of those claims which are inconsistent with English rights as viewed from the English point of view. The demand which will result from his withdrawal from the Foreign Department, but nothing worthy of serious acceptance is believed from the self-constituted slate-makers whose ratiocinations are as varied as they are absurd."

THE USE OF FORCE. "The Portuguese Government could be expected to make but one reply to a threat of force—that of submission. But submission in these circumstances would be tantamount to a behind, such as is visible in the continued agitation of the people of Lisbon. The task of diplomacy was to bring about a settlement in which the just rights of Great Britain should be recognized and respected, with as little hurt as possible to Portuguese self-respect. Liberty of the press and the right of public opinion to be heard, was not impracticable. On the face of the matter it appears that Lord Salisbury has done little more than assert the right of the stronger."

Rumors that are apparently well founded, have gained currency this evening emphasizing the supposition that Germany will support Portugal in her present South African policy and in her attitude towards Great Britain, both in regard to the seizure of the Delagoa Bay Railway and colonization projects generally. Before Portugal assumed control of the railway, it is alleged she consulted the Transvaal Government, which fell in with the proposal. Other support than that which the Transvaal could give was regarded as necessary, and overtures were made to Germany through the medium of the Transvaal official in Portugal. Germany is said to have promised "moral support, and the Portuguese Government thereupon selected the way."

It is further stated that Portugal has adopted her present line of conduct respecting the British ultimatum and other matters affecting British interests because of the promised support of Germany in Europe and the co-operation of the Boers in South Africa.

THE MORES-DREYFUS DUEL. The Flery Article Which Led to It—How It May Terminate.

Special Cablegram to the Post-Dispatch. ARIS, Feb. 1.—Soon after daylight to-morrow morning Marquis Mores will meet Editor Camille Dreyfus on the field in Belgium to fight a duel. Dreyfus and his second left here to-day, Mores and his second departing on the 2nd inst. According to the latest news of French dispatches neither combatant has anything about the affair still it is over, but the Post-Dispatch correspondent is informed on good authority that Dreyfus has not the least idea of shooting and consequently likely to come off badly in an encounter with a crack shot. The Marquis's passage in La National which provoked Mores to send his second to Dreyfus is headed,

"THE DAUGHTERS OF JEWS AND SOXS OF KNIGHTS."

Following is the short referring to Mores: "I wish to say a little word about the meeting at Knolly. A certain Marquis Mores gave vent to the cry: 'Gaul for the Gauls!' Now it happens that this full-blooded Gaul is neither a Christian nor a Gaul."

The article continues with a list of gentlemen who have married Jewish ladies and concludes: "This enumeration is a noble far-bouring proof that they are about to be the daughters of the Marquis Mores."

MESALLIAGE WITH JERUSALEM, especially when they have solid reasons for these mesalliances. If they take our daughters they don't take them, in the words of Shakespeare, 'though many would will be worth it, but the question is the question between themselves and their consciences. At least they should show some decency where they take daughter and money, and not wife boots which were paid for with a dowry on father's gray hair. That is the behavior of fancy men."

THE FRENCH CABINET is to be rearranged, although there has been no crisis. M. Constans, Minister of the Interior, will withdraw and become Governor of the Province. The appointment will be made and then the Cabinet, it is expected, will be completely in harmony with the ideas of President Carnot and at the same time less vulnerable to attack from Legislative bodies.

THE "WILD WEST" TROUBLES. Manager Salisbury Talks Hopelessly—Other Amusement Notes.

Special Cablegram to the Post-Dispatch. NAT Salisbury is here arranging to bring Buffalo Bill to London next April for the London season and then tour the provinces before returning to America. He declines to discuss the question that the condition of his books is keeping his show from visiting America, because he does not believe it was made by anybody authorized to talk money. The show must be turned away from his doors this week. The show must close two weeks from to-day and sell out for a contract time, or Barnum will forfeit $75,000.

AGNES HUNTINGTON'S OPERATIC TROUBLES. The English papers do not blame Agnes Huntington for protesting against being obliged to sing music written for tenor, but they do rap her hard for her impetuous action for a resignation of the British Protectorate over Nyassaland and the Shire Basin north of the River. Cardo and Col. Pina D'Almeida, but a complete status quo by force pending negotiations, but also an absolute abandonment by Portugal of those claims which are inconsistent with English rights as viewed from the English point of view. The demand which will result from his withdrawal from the Foreign Department, but nothing worthy of serious acceptance is believed from the self-constituted slate-makers whose ratiocinations are as varied as they are absurd."

THE USE OF FORCE. "The Portuguese Government could be expected to make but one reply to a threat of force—that of submission. But submission in these circumstances would be tantamount to a behind, such as is visible in the continued agitation of the people of Lisbon. The task of diplomacy was to bring about a settlement in which the just rights of Great Britain should be recognized and respected, with as little hurt as possible to Portuguese self-respect. Liberty of the press and the right of public opinion to be heard, was not impracticable. On the face of the matter it appears that Lord Salisbury has done little more than assert the right of the stronger."

Rumors that are apparently well founded, have gained currency this evening emphasizing the supposition that Germany will support Portugal in her present South African policy and in her attitude towards Great Britain, both in regard to the seizure of the Delagoa Bay Railway and colonization projects generally. Before Portugal assumed control of the railway, it is alleged she consulted the Transvaal Government, which fell in with the proposal. Other support than that which the Transvaal could give was regarded as necessary, and overtures were made to Germany through the medium of the Transvaal official in Portugal. Germany is said to have promised "moral support, and the Portuguese Government thereupon selected the way."

It is further stated that Portugal has adopted her present line of conduct respecting the British ultimatum and other matters affecting British interests because of the promised support of Germany in Europe and the co-operation of the Boers in South Africa.

The Chancellor has followed his policy, and has been so long in power that he has forgotten how to yield. The best he could do was to retire, and in this it is hinted he was assisted by the advice of Emperor, who has taken serious interest in the labor problem.

The Emperor has effected upon the masses in the coming elections, stimulating a feeling of loyalty and strengthening the vote for the Government candidates. It is regarded by some as a measure to counteract the Socialistic victory in the Reichstag and the crafty device of the Chancellor himself. He never took himself out of a difficult position in better time or with better grace.

THE RAILROAD MINERS have again presented to the Emperor a petition praying for relief from the tyranny of their masters and their appeal was graciously received. GLEANNING. Reforms in the Portuguese Colonies—Other Minor Foreign News.

Special Cablegram to the Post-Dispatch. LISBON, Feb. 1.—At the next session of the Cortes Senhor Arroya, Minister of Marine, and the colonies will introduce a comprehensive scheme for reform in the administration of the Portuguese colonies with a view to facilitate commerce between those dependencies, but more especially to regulate the custom with a view to full development of the colonies. It looks as if the growth of farm products will very soon be ignored and given over to the raising of stock, and the colonies will soon make more kings than will corn growing. The operators on all sides are working for the full development of their claims. THE World's Fair has been knocked out temporarily by the Congressional circus.

It is a relief to learn that Speaker REED was a paymaster during the war; his manners are those of a slave-driver before the war.

VERDICTS such as that in the Well case, in which the ruin of an innocent child is punished with a paltry jail sentence, tend to disgust people with unskilled jurymen.

In the absence of other rules the single rule of the House of Representatives is that Democratic members have no rights which a Republican Speaker is bound to respect.

THERE seems to be grave doubt whether the "tip" on the "Frisco case" is a "tip" for the benefit of the State or the railroad or merely a "tip" for the benefit of the attorney-at-law who gave it.

THE Republican Representatives will take a different view of Speaker REED's quorum rule after a safe Republican majority has been secured in the House. There is no consolation in this prospect, however, for the Democrats who are to be deprived of their Congressional seats and salaries.

In his letter to Attorney-General Wood Gov. FRANCIS refers to the "subjects" of the State of Missouri. What does the Governor mean? There are no "subjects" in Missouri. Besides the corporations, which are mere creatures of the State, there are only citizens who make up the sovereign people.

THE Mailed Hand is a picturesque thing, but it is out of place in the government of the legislature of a Republic. It is also a heavy thing to carry and is apt to have blisters on it. The Bismarck style of dictation may be successful in dealing with a German Reichstag, but it will not wear well or last long in the American Congress.

SENATOR CHANDLER, who has been a Secretary of the Navy, made a minority report against the Senate Committee's proposition to cover the seas with a navy of 27 cruisers, at a cost of $500,000,000 a year for maintenance. Senator CHANDLER favors a navy for defensive purposes, not for aggression, and for once he is on the right side.

The situation in the House of Representatives suggests that a clause requiring a majority of each house to pass a measure would be an excellent addition to the Constitution. It would settle the quorum question forever, and would be a wise check upon partisan tyranny and vicious legislation. This is one respect in which the Missouri Constitution is an improvement over the National Constitution.

THE grip, which is sweeping around the world, cutting off the weaklings, is a light matter as compared with the cholera, which is now ravaging Persia, and is expected by many medical authorities to follow in the wake of the other epidemic. It is foolish to fall into a panic over the anticipated visitation, but it is wise to take the warning of its approach and take proper sanitary measures to curb its virulence.

WHEN it was known that the people of Rio Janeiro had taken in two hours all the stock of the proposed National Bank of the United States of Brazil the administration at Washington found that it had held out as long as a shadow of excuse remained, and a tardy recognition was accorded the new Republic. This clears the way for the Republican leaders to permit Congress to pass a resolution congratulating Brazil on her bloodless revolution and welcoming her to the great and growing sisterhood of Republics.

THE New York and Tennessee decisions on the quorum question which Speaker REED cites as Democratic precedents for his rulings, were decisions of totally different cases relating to the passage of bills by the vote of two-thirds; requirements of State laws the interpretation of which has no bearing upon a quorum question arising under the Federal Constitution and which has been settled by usage by Congress for a hundred years. Mr. REED reverses not only BLAINE's ruling, but that of every former Speaker, Republican, Democrat or Whig.

ALL the credit Secretary BLAINE won over BAYARD by his extradition treaty. He obtained all the extradition concessions BAYARD obtained, and steered clear of the dynamite provisions which defeated the confirmation of BAYARD's treaty. But it seems pretty clear that Mr. BLAINE's Samoan party, besides making our Government a party to the imposition of an alien monarchy on the Samoans, actually repels the treaty by which we secured the harbor of Pago Pago from the Samoans, and compels us to depend on the consent of the new Chief Justice for a new concession of that harbor.

THE Democrats in Congress are not such idiots as to accept the newspaper suggestion that the Supreme Court will "declare void every act passed without a majority of Congress present and voting." It is probable that nearly half of the laws now on the statute books were passed that way. The Constitution of the United States does not, as the Constitution of Missouri does, require the affirmative vote of a majority of the members elected to each House to pass a bill, and the United States Supreme Court is probably aware of this difference between the two constitutions. Moreover, when the Speaker and Clerk of the House and the corresponding officers of the Senate certify to the passage of a bill and the President's signature converting it into a statute is properly attested, the Supreme Court never questions such authentication nor investigates the vote.

REED'S REVOLUTION.
There was commendable prudence in the unanimity with which the caucus of the House Democrats rejected the proposition to prevent Speaker REED's revolutionary method of manufacturing quorums by absenting themselves. The Sergeant-at-Arms would generally be able to find and bring in enough of them to answer REED's purposes, and the absence of the rest would only remove the obstruction to his autocratic rule of the House. To obstruct it by every parliamentary device and continually expose the iniquity of it, they must be present in full force at all times. An appeal to the people on such a record is their only remedy, and they have every reason to believe it will in the end be effective.

The spectacle of a House dominated by a Speaker and his committees, without rules, governed by his arbitrary and contradictory rulings, for which he has at no time been able to secure the sanction or support of a constitutional quorum or majority of the members-elect, is without a parallel or precedent in the history of Congress. Nothing like it was witnessed even in war times, when the States in rebellion were not represented. The unfairness and partisan ferocity of such a proceeding at such a time as this shocks the love of fair play and the conservatism of the whole country.

The purpose of this high-handed course is apparent in the proposed arbitrary seating of seventeen Republican contestants in the places of seventeen Democratic members holding certificates of election. A majority of the whole House cannot be relied on to sustain this action in every case, and therefore the power to do the wrong must be put in the hands of a minority in spite of the hitherto inviolate quorum rule.

Behind this packing of the House stalk the Pacific Railroad debt funders, the railroad land grabbers, FRYE's outrageous subsidy bill, and all the big bootleggers enrolled in the Plutocracy of this country. Plunder bills that have been defeated again and again by raising the quorum question will be put through with a rush by minority votes, and ere long the Republicans will be the sickest people in this country of REED's autocracy in legislation.

SIX LIVES LOST.
Famates of an Italian Boarding House.
Burned at Boston.

BOSTON, Mass., Feb. 2.—The building 353 Ninth street was burned early this morning and at least six persons were burned to death. The fire originated in a clothing store on the ground floor, kept by a Hebrew whose name could not be learned to-night. The upper floors were occupied as an Italian boarding-house.

The flames spread so rapidly that the fire was out of control. The firemen were unable to reach the fire in time. The building was a four-story brick structure. The names of the persons who were killed are: Mrs. Hannah Gilmartin, very badly burned about the body; Giuseppe Corio, a third-story window, Peter Lombardello, a third-story window, and a third-story window.

WASHINGTON.

The Question of the World's Fair Location Still in the Domain of Politics.

St. Louis Has Made Little Progress Towards Getting It, But Feels Encouraged.

Congressman Kinsey's Jefferson Barracks Bill Received With Great Favor.—Niedringhaus' Rebellious Absence From the House—His Recommendations for Office Prove Futile.—The Springfield Postmaster—Sedalla and St. Joseph Officers Be Bestowed This Week—Brazil's New Government Recognized by Mexico—Capital News of All Sorts.

By Telegram to the Post-Dispatch. WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 1.—The excitement which has for three days prevailed in the House growing out of the contested election cases has caused all World's Fair business to be laid aside. In fact, very little has been heard on the subject since the two political parties locked horns.

The committee on the Fair project met to-day and consumed several hours on the bill and proposed taking it up section by section. In this wise the tenth paragraph in the bill was reached. When the same was read before the House no one will venture to predict. All are in the dark. Any attempt at much progress within the next few days would be ruinous to the interests of all the cities concerned. Members will not listen to it. The political advantages are of first importance to all.

NEW YORK is not alarmed at the delay, but rather encourages it, that final action on the one-million-dollar power bill may be taken. Chicago is anxious to go ahead and St. Louis equally so. No advantages, it is generally understood, have been gained. St. Louis has made no progress, but feels encouraged at the shadows that have been cast by the failure of the New York Legislature to agree.

Col. Jones of St. Louis, who reached here to-day, has been in constant attendance upon the members, but finds no headway made since his departure from the Capitol a week or so ago. Gen. John B. Clark, who has regained his health, is again at the Senate. He will make no prediction. John J. O'Neill is charged at not being able to get a vote or two for St. Louis as the fair site through the contested election trouble. He has no vote of his own and cannot control any of the St. Louis members.

ROY BRYANT'S ABDUCTOR.

HE VISITED HIS MOTHER AND SISTER IN EAST ST. LOUIS ON FRIDAY.

He Didn't Have the Child With Him and Did Not Inform Them What He Intended to Do With the Boy—His Mother and Sister Thought the Child was Bryant's Own Until Six Months Ago—A Story Which Grows in Strangeness.

JOHN BRYANT, who abducted his foster son, Roy, aged 6 years, from the St. Louis Children's Free Hospital, on the corner of Jefferson avenue and Adams street, Thursday evening, was in East St. Louis Friday afternoon for the purpose of visiting his mother and his sister, who is the wife of Mr. C. R. White, the grocer on the corner of Fifth and St. Louis avenue. This was learned by a Post-Dispatch reporter yesterday, and is the first definite information about Bryant's whereabouts since he ran out of the hospital with the child in his arms. He did not have the child, Roy, with him on the occasion of his visit to his mother and sister, but he informed them that he had procured possession of it. According to Mrs. White's story he did not give her or her mother any information as to where he intended to take the child, and they say they have no idea where he is stopping at present.

MRS. WHITE'S STORY. Mrs. White was seen yesterday afternoon at her residence on the East Side. She was decidedly averse to having her name connected with the case, and it will be seen that she really had no connection with the abduction. "My brother came over to see mother and me yesterday afternoon," she said, "but he was in a great hurry and, beyond telling us that he had secured the child from the hospital, gave us no information about the matter. I knew nothing of the particulars of the abduction until I read the account in the Post-Dispatch last evening."

"Did your brother tell you where he intended to take the child, Mrs. White?" "No, he did not, and I never asked him. The fact is that since I learned the child was not his, I lost the interest in the boy I once had, and I do not want to be mixed up in any fight over the child."

"When did you find out that the child was not your brother's?" "About six months ago. When my brother and his wife separated on account of trouble between them, he brought the child over here and wanted mother and me to keep it. I was inclined to do so, but Mr. White positively refused to allow me to accept the child. After that I learned that the boy was not my brother's, and since being informed of that fact I have been glad that Mr. White took the position that he did. When I thought the child was my brother's own flesh and blood I, of course, felt inclined to do for it, but since learning that it is not, I have lost interest in the child and do not wish to be mixed up in any difficulty about it."

"How did you learn the child was not your brother's?" "Through Mrs. Bryant refusing to acknowledge the boy as her own. My brother said it never would have been known if she had not told it."

"Did he tell you why he had abducted the child?" "Yes. He said he took it because it was to be surrendered to his wife Monday."

"Do you know who the woman was who assisted him in the plot to get the child?" "No, I have not the slightest idea."

"Didn't you ask him for some particulars about the abduction?" "He said he had no time to tell us anything about it, but that he would be back to see us in a week again."

"Where does your brother live in St. Louis, Mrs. White?" "I don't know. We address his letters to a cigar store at 414 Washington avenue, but we don't have to send many, because he comes over to see us every day."

No clue was furnished at the cigar store as the proprietor only knows Bryant by sight.

THE DEVELOPMENTS in the case of little Roy Bryant show what mysteries often underlie life in a big city. The boy was an illegitimate offspring. His mother was from Kentucky; probably some unfortunate girl who had been ruined by the man she trusted. The boy was a living evidence of her shame, and she could not take him home with her. She wrote out her guilt being known. She could not face her friends probably if they knew, and for that reason she made up her mind to disown her babe. The father, too, was not willing to look after the child, and so it was left on the hands of the doctor who had delivered it. He gave the babe to Mr. and Mrs. Bryant, who was a week old. They were a young married couple who had never had a child, and were anxious to have one to brighten their lives. No one knew but that the child was their own. Given Bryant's own mother and sister were deceived.

In the course of the investigation Mrs. Bryant had trouble and was finally estranged. After they parted Bryant got possession of the child. He did not know that Mrs. Bryant, left him with the child on his hands. He who asserts that he abducted the little one, for the purpose of getting him to go back to him, knowing her affection for the adopted boy, says that the only reason he wanted the child was to get him to go back to his mother, to regain the child, but was unsuccessful. Bryant failed to get his mother and sister to take the little one, and finding him a burden on his hands, put him in the Mesquite Mission Home on Ninth and Yash streets. The foster mother learned that the boy was in that institution, and made application to have him restored to her. She was told that Bryant had entered the child's history and brought such letters that they were convinced that unless Bryant's claim that he was the boy's real father was proved, that Mrs. Bryant was the proper person to have the child. They gave Bryant the alternative of producing the certificate of the child's birth or surrendering the child to the night nurse. He could not produce the certificate, because his wife had it. The document had been given her by the doctor who delivered the babe. The time given him in which to produce the certificate or lose the child was to-morrow. Seeing that he was to be thwarted in his desire he determined to get the child by strategy before the final decision of the board of managers of the mission was made.

The little boy, who had been attacked with pneumonia, had been sent to the St. Louis Children's Free Hospital and from that establishment he was taken by Bryant's mind to abduct him. How he carried out his scheme the readers of the Post-Dispatch are fully acquainted with. He secured the assistance of other conspirators, two of whom were women, he managed to get the child out of the institution. The little fellow was carried off in his night gown, and as he was just recovering from pneumonia and was carried for some distance exposed to the night air, his eventual career may be soon brought to a close. Persons who believe in fair, however, would regard the boy's sad history as an assurance that he will live.

Tendered His Resignation. By Telegram to the Post-Dispatch. MARCOUTAH, Ill., Feb. 1.—Rev. Paul Brank, the popular pastor of the Evangelical Protestant Church in this city, has tendered his resignation. He will leave early in the spring for Los Angeles, Cal., where he has been called by a prominent church.

Boils and Pimples

Are natural efforts to eliminate poison from the blood. This result may be accomplished much more effectively, as well as agreeably, through the proper excretory channels, by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

"For several years I was troubled with boils and carbuncles. In casting about for a remedy, it occurred to me that Ayer's Sarsaparilla had been used in my father's family, with excellent success, and I thought that what was good for the father would also be good for the son. Three or four bottles of this medicine entirely cured me, and I have not since—in more than two years—had a boil, pimple, or any other eruptive trouble. I can conscientiously speak in the highest terms of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and many years' experience in the drug business enables me to speak intelligently."—C. M. Hatfield, Farmstead, Ind.

ST. LOUIS, February 2, 1890.
The forecast for Missouri for to-day is local rains; warmer.

A cartoon illustration of a man with a mustache and a worried expression, shouting "SHUT THE DOOR I'VE GOT THE GRIP!" while holding a small object in his hand. The man is wearing a simple tunic. The text is written in a bold, hand-drawn style.

Reader, have you as yet gotten a grip on some of the bargains we are offering at the present time? It's sort of between hay and harvest in the commercial world, and to stimulate business we've made prices which make trade.

You want to get a grip on one of those suits we are now selling at $12, $15, $18 and $20. These prices are from $5 to $10 less than they have sold for during the season.

You also want to seize the opportunity now offered to save from $10 to $15 in our Overcoat department. Most of those we are now selling for $15 have been reduced from $20 and some from $30.

Don't fail to grasp the fact that the Trousers we are now offering for $5 are worth a good deal more. Many of them were made to sell for $6, $7, $8.

You also want to let our inducements in Neckwear take a firm hold of you. Elegant Silk and Satin Teck Scarfs, 35c; 3 for $1.

Your head should become firmly attached to one of our matchless $1.50 Derby Hats.
They are not only as good as the hats you are accustomed to pay $3 for—they are the same hat in many instances.

And let your mind adhere—we can't say freeze to, 'taint cold enough—to the fact that the Celebrated Star Shirt, which we sell at $1, open back and front, has no equal. It gains in popularity daily, and it ought to.

ST. LOUIS, SUNDAY MORNING, FEBRUARY 2, 1890.

AN OPPORTUNITY,

And One That Is Not to Be Found
Except on Rare Occasions,

Is What the "Sunday Post-Dispatch" Offers to Its Want Advertisers.

A Beautiful Picture That Is to Be Given to Every One Who Puts a Want Advertisement in the "Sunday Post-Dispatch" of Sunday, February 9.—Faust and Marguerite the Title of This Work of Art—A Great Chance That Should Not Be Allowed to Escape—Arrangements That Have Been Made by Which Frames Can Be Obtained at the Minimum of Cost—Where Samples of the Picture Can Be Seen.

HE most desirable thing in life is a happy home, and to accomplish this result is the end and aim of mankind. To make home happy it must be made attractive. To make it attractive nothing helps more than do pictures, if they are of the right kind.

It is a well-known fact that the SUNDAY POST-DISPATCH is the most progressive Sunday paper in St. Louis.

It is another well known fact that it aims to please the people and do all it can for their benefit, especially its many thousands of patrons.

Many of those who come to advertise their wants in the SUNDAY POST-DISPATCH have little to brighten their homes, perhaps the one room that serves as a home for them. As the poor woman, who is sewing for small wages, raises her tired eyes from her work they rest only on bare walls that only increase the dreariness of her hard life. Much brighter she would feel if instead she had at least a picture or two to cheer her or bring some new thought or dream to her. She has no time to go and look at pictures or any of the other things that brighten life.

This woman is only one of many in different occupations, both men and women, and they are all compelled at one time or another to use the "want" columns of the newspapers to get more work.

To all such the SUNDAY POST-DISPATCH proposes to make a gift of a handsome picture.

This gift is not to be confined to any one class of "want" advertisers but to all who have wants and use the SUNDAY POST-DISPATCH as a medium for stating them to the public.

This new departure is to be inaugurated by the SUNDAY POST-DISPATCH Sunday, February 9, and each succeeding week a new picture will be given.

The first picture that will be given away is entitled, "Faust and Marguerite." It represents the unfortunate lovers, whose story is so well known and has so often been the theme of writers of both prose and poetry, standing in a handsome room. Faust holds Marguerite in his arms and is kissing her. Marguerite's spinning wheel stands in the foreground and in the background hang beautiful tapestries.

The picture is a charming one and would be an ornament to the wall of any room. It is over two feet long and a foot and a half in width.

This picture is to be given to every person who puts a want ad in the SUNDAY POST-DISPATCH of February 9, either at the counter of the POST-DISPATCH office, or at any of the branch offices. At the branch offices an order on the POST-DISPATCH counting room the bearer will be given the picture.

The advertisement must be in the office not later than 9:30 p. m. Saturday. In addition to giving the picture the management of the SUNDAY POST-DISPATCH has made arrangements whereby those who wish to have their pictures framed can have them done so handsomely at a cost greatly reduced below the usual retail price.

The American Art Co., at the corner of Eighth and Pine streets, will frame the pictures in one of two styles, according to the taste or taste of the owner.

The first style is a 14-in. oak frame, of the best quality and very handsome. The price of this frame, including glass, framing, etc., is 90 cents.

The second frame is in white and silver, and would make a beautiful ornament for any parlor. It is really beautiful. The price of it is $1.25.

Samples of the picture to be given to the want advertisers of Sunday, February 9, and also of the frames can be seen at the counting room of the POST-DISPATCH any day this week.

On Sunday, February 16, the POST-DISPATCH will give to all its want advertisers the companion picture, "Hamlet and Ophelia," another charming work of art.

It is but once in a life time such a chance is offered, and all who have wants to advertise should bear in mind that by advertising in the "want" columns of the SUNDAY POST-DISPATCH of Sunday, February 9, they will not only get their wants filled, but also get a beautiful work of art in addition without any extra charge.

A FEATURE OF SINGLE TAX LEAGUE MEETINGS—LECTURE DAYS.

One of the features of the Single Tax League meetings now is a mock congress. The subject to be discussed this evening is a bill providing for the election of State Senators by the direct vote of the people. Rabbi Samuel Gais of Shalom Emath will address the League.

Tuesday evening on "Socialism." The following Tuesday evening W. L. Sheldon of the Ethical Culture Society will deliver an address, "Comparing Progress and Poverty With Looking Backward—Mr. George W. H. Bellamy."

Father Huntington of New York will speak in the city soon under the auspices of the League.

POSTMASTER HARLOW TO-DAY.

A Telegraphic Order for the Transfer of the Office Received Last Night.

John B. Harlow, the recently appointed Postmaster, at 8 o'clock last night received a telegram from Washington informing him that his bond had been received there, his commission had been signed by the President and that the telegram was authority for him to assume charge of the office. This intelligence, a pleasant surprise to Mr. Harlow and Mr. Hyde, the retiring Postmaster, Mr. Hyde has been anxious to be relieved of the duties, that he might devote his time to the promotion of his newspaper enterprise. It arrived much earlier than was expected. The delay in the transfer here from Washington of the first of the Postmaster's duties, a most unusual circumstance, which was nearly a week after the confirmation by the Senate of the President's nomination of Mr. Harlow to the office, was due to the fact that the order for transfer would be made before the notice of the transfer of the duties of the Postmaster to Mr. Harlow was received and in consequence action was delayed.

To-day Mr. Hyde will transfer the office to Mr. Harlow. The money order division will close at 1 o'clock and after that there will be no business that will interfere with the transfer. Mr. Hyde will transfer no money to Mr. Harlow. He will deposit every cent of money. He will transfer only such Post-office furniture as he holds, and the stock of stamps, envelopes and postal cards.

Monday morning Mr. Harlow will assume the reins. Isaac Sturgeon, who has already been sworn in and given bond will enter upon the discharge of the duties of Assistant Postmaster. The office of Superintendent of Mails will have charge of that division until the Superintendent of the railway mail service selects some one to succeed Mr. Harlow as Superintendent of mails or details a clerk to fill the office temporarily.

Mr. Harlow last night: "I shall not revolutionize the office. It is running very smoothly now. There will be some changes made, but I shall not make them all in the first day. I shall take time to consider what changes are necessary for the good of the service and act as my judgment dictates."

IN A DIFFERENT LIGHT.

Two Women Charged With Imprisoning a Girl Present Her Solicitors Relative.

In the First District Police Court, yesterday, the cases against Mabel Clifford and Blanche Clayton, charged with being the proprietors of a house of ill-fame on "Tenth street," were dismissed on payment of costs. These actions were the outgrowth of the charge made to the police the previous Saturday night by Grace White and her mother, Mrs. Helen Fisher, to the effect that the girls had been locked in the house and restrained of a bill for board. The defendants sued without success. The police, in the meantime, had been informed by the girls that the action they had taken was not of the nature alleged by the police, and the case could not be dismissed altogether and the above disposition was made.

Among the many brilliant of grotesque costumes which were gaily shown were the following ladies:

Miss Philippa Overholt, a tulip, in pink satin and dark velvet, the bodice of the velvet, decollete and sleeves; white wig and large hat of the velvet; a beautiful toilet.

Miss Daisy Wilcox, a most unique and original costume, in a gripper, the costume of a Russian officer, over a dress was worn a large mantle, formed of dozens of white feathers of every size and color and garnished with pill boxes.

Miss Wilcox, Marie Stuart, in black velvet with Marie Stuart cap of velvet, edged with beads.

Miss Annie Althaus Goetz, in red and blue striped skirt with beads.

Miss Amelia Biedenstein, the evening star, in pale blue velvet bordered with silver, with silver stars upon the skirt, and thin shaped in white satin, bordered with silver to represent a star.

Miss Marie Hunkeler and Miss Clara Fuchs costumed as fairies in pale blue gauze spangled with silver, blue satin bodice, black tulle and sleeves.

Miss Pauline Buechel, an exquisite costume of an Alpine peasant, the skirt of pale blue cashmere, bordered with several rows of r.

North St. Louis.

The Shaw Dramatic Club of North St. Louis has been reorganized.

The ladies of Ivy Council, A. L. of H., will have their annual ball and banquet February 9, at St. Patrick's Hall.

The residence of Gustave Poppender, No. 331 North Twenty-second street, was entered by burglars yesterday, and $500 worth of jewelry and other valuables were stolen.

John Ashburn of No. 1948 North Ninth street died yesterday. Deceased was 60 years old and well known in North St. Louis.

The furniture factories report an increase of 25 percent over the January of a year ago. A number of factories are yet behind on orders.

The Northwestern Greenacres will give their twentieth annual masquerade ball Saturday, February 15, at the North St. Louis Turner Hall.

An Alabama Sensation.

By Telegraph to the Post-Dispatch.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Feb. 1.—Society at Avondale, a beautiful suburb of this city, is terribly torn up over the betrayal of Miss Lulu Screws, a beautiful and immensely popular young lady of that village. Yesterday the father of the girl went before Justice J. T. Poe of this city and swore out a warrant against Miss W. Cooper, a prominent young merchant of the town, a member of the firm of Barnes & Cooper. Cooper was arrested today and required to give bond in the sum of $10,000 to answer, which he did, and was released. Cooper's daughter, however, is now he is the author of the young lady's ruin. Miss Screws is about 18 years of age, accomplished, attractive, and of the best people of Avondale. The affair has created a startling sensation, and bloodshed is looked for.

The Money Lender's Statement.

In relation to the story of R. S. Brown, who borrowed $18,000 of W. Peters & Co., paid $7,000 for it and was then held liable for the payment of a note for $25,400 with a year's interest which was printed in Friday's POST-DISPATCH, F. W. Peters said yesterday that he had been deceived by Brown from his obligation under the note and the mortgage on his furniture which secured the loan. Peters' loan company perfectly satisfied. The new note is for $25, and is without other consideration than the original $18,000 Brown gave.

We call the attention of the public to the statement of the Peter Cooper Building and Loan Association on page 14.

IN FANCY'S KINGDOM.

THE LINDERKRAZ MASQUERADE BALL A BRILLIANT SPECTACLE.

Georgous Decoration of the Ball Room and Stage—The Wine Room Transformed into a Pinery and the Walls Covered With Bright Decorations—A Description of Some of the Most Striking and Elaborate Costumes.

Linderkraz Hall, with its lofty ceilings and noble proportions, made a brilliant theater last night for the gorgeous and motley thrang of many maskers, who took possession of it. Forseeing the necessity for all the space they could command, Mr. Linderkraz, who had the decorations in charge, converted the wine-room into a promenade hall, with artistic effect, the walls lined with plush, giving the appearance of a shady grove as seen through the numerous arches which separated that room from the main hall; the pillars which supported the arches on both sides of the room, were covered with white, representing perfectly white marble inlaid with mosaics of every hue. Posing upon these columns were life-like figures of cavaliers and ladies, and peasants, and princes, cleverly executed by Faust and from each of them garlands of flowers, besprinkled with gems were festooned around the entire room, and the cornice, and moldings from which the chandeliers and clusters of electric lights were suspended, were all studded with gems of every hue, converting the whole into a fairy-like realm.

The stage was set with a mimic grove and running brook and water fall, while in the right hand was erected a temporary stand for Saenger's orchestra, embowered in evergreens. Upon the front wall between the main doors, was hung two large canvases; upon one of them was represented Humpty Dumpty, drawn in a chariot by a brace of owls, with immense jeweled eyes, through the clouds of night and a starry sky, in which hangs a new moon, upon which is perched an owl.

On another canvas was represented the King of the Carnival, upon four prancing steeds, riding through the roseate, gold-tipped clouds of the morning. In the upper room below a banquet was spread for several hundred guests.

The following were the committees:

Arrange Committee—Costume of "Tromper of Sackingen." Ed Duechel, Herman Stifel, Reception Committee—Costume of Hungarian Nobility.

F. W. Sennewald, C. Damborst, A. Moll, F. Sausenthaler, A. Kohn, E. Dittche, L. Ross, Ferd Dlehm, J. W. Schorr, Carl Haack, C. E. H. H. H.

Chicago's New Ship Yard.

CHICAGO, Feb. 1.—The work of preparing the site for the new Chicago ship yard on the Calumet shore is being pushed vigorously and the dredging of the ships is well on towards completion. The company has completed the purchase of a tract on the east side of the river near One Hundred and Second street of a frontage of 1,400 feet and a depth of 70 feet.

"We expect to have our tools and machinery in place by March 1," W. L. Babcock, the manager of the Chicago Ship Building Co., said yesterday, "and hope to be able to lay the keel of our first steamer by April 1. Our first work will be two large steel steamers for the Minnesota Iron Co."

A Secretary of Dissecting Material.

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 1.—The startling dissecting work in the medical colleges has been entirely suspended since the first of the year. The cause is due to the difficulty in securing bodies. The warm weather throughout the winter has been very destructive to corpses, and a day or two in the grave renders them unfit for medical purposes. The savings, in many instances, of the bodies have been used to supply their usual quota. The colleges here regret about a seventy-five bodies every winter, but not half that many have been obtained and the seasons close in a month.

Of course, the Nazis fixed up the affair so that both sides appeared to be guilty and the blame was in general. The young Germans were expected to spend so much in practicing proper positions. The cost can now be purchased at reduced rates. It appears that the King and his son, Prince Philip, are young men chosen for that trying position. When Mr. Edmunds by a POST-DISPATCH representative was asked and noted again the place he remarked:

"I have nothing to say."

"Do you object to telling where the wound was?" he asked.

"Mr. Edmunds smiled and his answer was:

"I have no statement to make on this subject."

"Do you anything to say about the 'double'?"

"At present," If I have anything to say it will be said later on."

It did not appear to be much the worse for the wound. Mr. Edmunds smiled, and reiterated that he had nothing to say anything whatever about the wound.

ART IN HEAD DRESS.

An Artist's Rules for the Arrangement of the Feminine Hair and Head Covering.

Relation of the Size of the Head to the Height of the Human Body.

Correct Proportions of a Man and Woman—Method of Ascertaining Them—How to Remedy Shortcomings—Aesthetic Rules to Be Governed By—Various Styles of Dressing the Hair and the Effects They Produce—Why Some Styles Look Well on Some Women and Others on Others—Ovid on the Correct Arrangement of the Hair—Every Woman Should Study Her Face, and Dress Her Hair Accordingly.

[Written for the SUNDAY POST-DISPATCH.]

IN architecture the measurement of the most perfectly beautiful examples of the art and the calculation of the proportion between the height, length and width, not only of the entire building, but also of its every component part in relation to every other part, has led to the discovery of certain fundamental principles for governing the architect; similarly the measurement of perfectly developed and symmetrically built men and women, or their sculptured counterparts, has demonstrated the existence of certain rules, which guide the aesthetic feeling with regard to the human form. In other words we do not derive aesthetic pleasure from the contemplation of figures not proportioned in accordance with those rules. It is for example

From Middle Finger to Middle Finger, almost as high as the head, and the proportions of the human body as given by the best authorities are as follows: the length of the head being the standard of measurement:

- From the bottom of chin to breastbone, one-half length of head.
- From top to bottom of breastbone or sternum, one-half length of head.
- From bottom of sternum to beginning of lower limbs, two lengths.
- From thigh to bottom of knee, two lengths.
- From the bottom of the knee to the ankle, one and one-half lengths.
- From ankle to the ground, one-half length.
- Adding to these measurements one length

Wrong. Right. The head itself, gives eight lengths for the proper height of the body of men. Women are slightly shorter, the proportion of their head to the height being about as one to seven or seven and one-half.

The Long Face. The Broad Face. The head is, when the eyes are opened, half as long as the body, and the length of the body from crown to crown is one and one-half lengths of the head.

adds columns and may thus increase the effect; if the building be inordinately high, on the other hand, he may use many horizontal lines as possible. A horizontal line lends breadth, a vertical line height. It follows, therefore, that in making a dress, that stout people will do well to arrange their apparel with a view to present long vertical lines to the eye, by using long drapings, stripes, material, etc., while tall people may increase their breadth through the use of horizontal stripes, belts and dress trimmings. So much for the dress in general, a subject on which men often, women rarely, make mistakes, provided they have an opportunity of feeling themselves in a looking glass.

Where they do make mistakes, however, is in the arrangement of the hair and head-dress. Little women with large heads very often think they will look taller if they wear large hats and a fluffy arrangement of the hair. This is a fallacy, and instead of looking taller they will only appear the shorter. The reason is very simple. Their height is only about six lengths of the head. Naturally, by increasing the size of the head the disproportion will be greater, as then their figure will appear to be only five times the length of their head. Little women should wear small hats and simple hair-dresses.

One often hears a tall woman say, when trying on a large hat: "Oh, I could not think of wearing this hat; why, it adds at least six inches to my height, and I think I am tall enough now." And she forthwith proceeds to buy a little bit of hat, scarcely distinguishable from her Psyche knot. But if she wore turned round. He recommends order in the arrangement of the hair, and says that nothing so displeasing as carelessness and disorder. He also advises the beauty to whom the hair is addressed to use the hair-dressing glass as an aid to her deft fingers. With true hair-dressing gallantry he accepts it as a matter of course that her innate good taste will guide her aright, with the aid of his facts. For a long time he recommends a simple part on the forehead and advises round-faced women to wear the hair knotted on the top of the head. Our illustrations will show how truly this rule operates. The two upper heads represent a long-faced and a short-faced woman, each with the proper arrangement of the hair which, you may note, overcomes the lack of proportion to a great extent. Beneath them the effect of judicious choice of hair-dress can be noted. The long face is made still longer, the broad face still broader. When the head is short and broad should be drawn backward and upward in order to carry the eye in the direction of height. If the head is long and thin the hair had best be drawn down towards the ear and be made to puff out on the sides so as to give breadth to the face and forehead.

An oval head will look well in almost any style of coiffure.

The modern bang or fluffy projection of the hair over the forehead will improve the appearance of people with projecting features, which it will tend down to a receding profile. Those whose profiles show projecting forehead will only increase the disproportion thereof by wearing bangs and should comb the hair backward, leaving the forehead free. Looking at different faces the observer will be struck by one peculiarity noticeable in nearly every one of them, which is, that in spite of the dissimilarity the disposition of the lines in each individual face is strikingly regular. If the forehead is high, the nose is upturned, the nostrils, base of the nose, upper lip and often the chin will go.

Where these lines are horizontal or drooping, the same thing may be observed. It is not only interesting, but highly beneficial to study these lines, as they give a clue to the manner in which everything tending to improve the appearance of the face should be handled, the rule being to cross these lines as much as possible, at least the nose and chin. THE MAKING OF GLASS.

HOW THE GREAT INDUSTRY OF BOHEMIA IS CARRIED ON.

The Early History of Glass—Egyptian Glassware—Venetian Glass—The First Development of the Bohemian Industry—Its Rise and Growth—The Different Kinds of Glass Made.

Blowing of Cylinders.

The history of the glass industry dates back to remote and ancient times. Plinius' little narrative of the Phoenician fisher who discovered the process while cooking their meal, does not find much credence to-day; neither has it been proven when and where glass was first made. It is true that the oldest glassware of which we have any knowledge, came from Phoenicia and Egypt, and Siden and Tyros furnished even before the period of the Roman Empire excellent glass hollow ware. The art of making glass seems to have had its earliest origin in Egypt, for 1800 years before Christ, the royal pyramids of Beni Hassan were decorated with reliefs of glass-blowers engaged at their work.

The Egyptian glassware evinces a remarkably well developed technique; the color and form are up to standard in every respect. Not only were kitchen and table utensils made of glass, but even objects which were wont to be made of stone, such as tombstones, statues, obelisks, etc., were not infrequently manufactured of glass, which is proof positive that the art of making glass had in those days passed way beyond its infancy.

A GLASS FACTORY.

During the period of the Roman Empire large glass factories were found in Alexandria, which furnished all the countries of those days with colored glassware and glass mosaic. The great love of pomp and splendor of the Romans encouraged and fostered the development of the glass manufacture in Rome, and the style of combining the Greek arrangement of the features of that time, which invariably show the style of feature most in accord with the prevailing fashion of towering hair-dresses, plumes and bouffants.

Of the fashion which prevailed in the time of the crusaders, which encumbered the female head with long funnel-shaped domes very little good can be said from any point of view, and least of all from the artistic standpoint. There is something quaint in the coiffure which partly conceals the forehead and the hair fluffily on top of the head and afloaty permits it to bulge out on the sides of the head, and we note with pleasure that the charming reminder of the time of George the Fourth is becoming the fashion again in our day.

During the reign of Napoleon III., the then beautiful Empress Eugenie brought out the style of combining the Greek arrangement of the features of that time, which invariably show the style of feature most in accord with the prevailing fashion of towering hair-dresses, plumes and bouffants.

A word or two as to the methods of serving oranges at table may not be amiss. The simplest way is to remove the peel from the top and bottom of the orange, leaving a grid about an inch wide all about the equator, and then to cut the orange into sections, and carefully separate the sections from each other, leaving them attached to the strip of peel which runs along the equator, and then to cut the sections into halves, leaving the sections attached to the strip of peel which runs along the equator.
